There are but few persons now to be found who do not possess some article of wearing apparel made of silk; but there was a time when the nobles of the land could not boast of such a thing: not even a queen. Henry II. is said to have been the first person who wore a pair of silk stockings. 5. The sources of clothing are found in both the animal and vegetable world. From the former we get wool, silk, fur, and leather; from the latter, cotton and 6. Wool is the natural covering of the sheep. Wool has been employed as a material for clothing in the eastern part of the world from the earliest ages. It was introduced into this country by the Romans and the Saxons; but woollen garments were not much worn until after the Norman...
